Dear Xiaoli WU, Chun ZHANG

I write in reference to the 13th International Conference on Teaching and Learning Chinese in Higher Education, organised by the British Chinese Language Teaching Society and hosted by Oxford University on 8th July – 10th July 2015. The Conference will provide a wonderful opportunity for local and international scholars and professionals around the world to exchange their cutting-edge research and practical teaching experiences concerning international Chinese teaching and learning in Higher Education. The following topics are in anticipation to be discussed at the Conference.

- The sustainability of international Chinese language teaching
- Studies on the Chinese linguistics and Chinese language acquisition
- Chinese teaching and learning specific to different countries
- Assessment, evaluation and Chinese Competence Framework of Reference
- Syllabus design and material development
- Teaching and research on listening, reading, speaking, writing, and translating skills
- Teaching Chinese culture and cross-cultural communication
- Chinese language teaching in the age of Web 2.0
- Teaching and research on E-C translation and interpreting

We are pleased to inform you that the abstract of your paper has been accepted and that you are invited to make a presentation on A Comparative Study on Error Analysis: Belgian (L1) and Danish (L1) learners' use of Chinese (L2) comparative sentences in written production.

Accepted as: Full Paper

Presentation Length: 20 minutes, followed by Q&A: 10 minutes

Time: 8th July – 10th July 2015

Venue: the Dickson Poon China Centre, Oxford University

Full papers of maximum 8 pages will be invited for publication after the conference. All the papers will be peer-reviewed and published by selected prestigious publishing houses. The conference programme will be released soon after the deadline of registration in June 2015.

The conference charges registration fee at £90 for non-member delegates, £30 for postgraduate students (with proof of student status). Accommodation and travel expenses will be self-funded for non-members. For more information about the conference registration, please visit our website:
